SHELTON, Wash. - In an unprecedented gathering of VIP's including many Sheriffs, Police Chiefs, Fire Chiefs along with WA State Patrol Chief John Batiste, both U.S. Representative Derek Kilmer and WA State Governor Jay Inslee spoke at the monthly Mason County Sheriff's Breakfast held at the Little Creek Casino. U.S. Representative Derek Kilmer briefly spoke to a full audience of executive level first responders from around WA State. Then WA State Governor Jay Inslee provided the key note address with a question & answer period at the end. Breakfast host, Sheriff Casey Salisbury coordinated the event and was very pleased with the turnout of over 90 Law Enforcement, Fire and EMS executive professionals that came to listen and provide valuable feedback to our state's highest executive.

Special thanks was given to the Little Creek Casino staff for providing such a wonderful facility, professional service and top quality breakfast buffet for a minimal price to attendees. The Sheriff's Breakfast is in it's seventh year and continues to be the largest gathering of Law Enforcement, Fire and EMS professionals in WA State.
